

The Connecticut Hospice Tree of Life Fund helps secure the future of America's first Hospice, for both inpatient and home hospice care.

The unique sculpture designed and carved by renowned New Jersey artist Richard Teller, of the Sanford Werfel studios, is located in the lobby of our waterfront Hospice and Palliative Care Hospital. The branches rise to brass leaves and carved dogwood blossoms. Around the root of the tree are carved contributor stones carved in cherry wood. These leaves, dogwood blossoms and stones will be engraved with the names of major gift donors and/or the names of those they wish to honor or memorialize.

Our "Tree" offers a lasting and meaningful way for family and friends to express their love and appreciation to those close to them.

If you wish to participate, please send your contribution, with the attached form to:

The Connecticut Hospice's Mission Statement

"The Connecticut Hospice shall provide quality, compassionate and competent hospice care in Connecticut to patients suffering from irreversible illness, and to members of their families. Care shall be interdisciplinary in nature, allow for family decision-making and participation in care, and shall seek to enhance quality of life for as long as life lasts. With the full support of the philanthropic community, care shall also be offered based on need rather than ability to pay. Bereavement care shall also be offered commensurate with need. Home Care and inpatient care shall serve as a clinical model for national replication through education, training and research made essential by our unique role as the founder of hospice care in America."

The Connecticut Hospice, Inc. is a not-for-profit 501(c)(3) corporation, and is the first hospice in America. Today we serve patients and their families throughout Connecticut.
